Excerpt: . . . 9 for decision making and allocation of resources; and to provide for the measurement of the environmental and economic effects of invasive species treatments. An additional strategy for protecting forest health involves USDAs work to broad-en the use of markets for ecosystem services through voluntary market mechanisms as announced by Secretary Johanns at the White House Conference on Cooperative Conservation. As part of this effort, Forest Service Research and Development will continue its work regarding the quantification of ecosystem services values. INCREASED COLLABORATIVE EFFORTS The White House Conference on Cooperative Conservation, held in August 2005, marked an important milestone in the effort to expand and improve collaboration in natural resource management. The White House Conference underscored a clear lesson learned from the Forest Service Centennial - that the Forest Service has entered a new, more collaborative era of natural resource management. Today we are focusing on improving forest health and promoting sustainable recreation. In order to work effectively in this new environment, the future of the Forest Service must be built on collaboration instead of top-down regulation. The new planning rule for the Forest Service creates a dynamic planning process that is less bureaucratic, emphasizes sound science, and encourages more public involvement earlier in the planning stages. We also expect that the new system of planning will be more strategic, transparent, timely and efficient. The planning process will be more effective because the rule requires annual evaluation of monitoring results and a comprehensive evaluation every 5 years. Under the old planning rule, it usually took five to seven years to revise a 15-year land management...
