Not illustrated. 1886 Excerpt: .out, Scotchmen, defile not yersel s by entering in here, or clapping een on the idol! By and by the hubbub calmed, and the crowd dispersed; some affirming that bonnie Lord Jamie did what he did in order that none should fash wi the priest; while others thought he was in fear for his sister s life. Be that as it may, he was by no means the only Reformer inside Holy Rood that Sunday morning. After the belligerent outsiders had gone away the doors were made fast, and Low Mass said, the Cardinal thus only getting his wishes partially fulfilled. The difficulty now was how to smuggle out the officiating priest; for some zealous folks might be still about, and see meet to rend him limb from limb. So he was taken in charge by Lord John, Pryor of Coldingham, and Lord Robert, Pryor of Holie Rood, both ardent professors of the evangel, and related to the Queen after the same sort as Lord Moray. But all this has taken us so long to note, that by the time we return to St. Giles Kirk, Master Knox is half through his discourse. An amazing sight, indeed, is that great sea of upturned faces, gazing so fixedly at one bright-eyed little man, listening enraptured and spell-bound! Small wonder of that; for John Knox s sermons were no mere evangelical curries, where pungency stands for nutriment, but rousing, stirring addresses (though sometimes also intensely touching), now...
